

Make Pretty Windows With Kirsch Flat Curtain Rods

You do not realize how much the appearance of your new Curtains depend on the rods until you have tried Kirsch Flat Rods.

The flat shape of Kirsch Rods means Sagless Strength and keeps the headings gracefully erect. The hems are neat and smooth. The curtains are displayed to the very best advantage.

Kirsch Rods are the most economical you can buy, as well as the most practical. Fit any window. Easy to put up; easy to take down.

When planning your window changes this spring, remember Kirsch Rods. Also see the new effects in Lace Curtains we are showing for this season.

Isaac Recor of the East Barre road believes in getting an early start, at least in the chicken-raising business and he can rightfully stake his claim on the record achieved. Twelve young chicks a week old, hatched from a setting of 13 eggs, are a rarity at this time of the year. Nevertheless, Mr. Recor is the proud possessor of the lot he brooded and if a good number of them turn out to be industrious layers he will reap early returns next fall when eggs may be at a premium.

Russell B. Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Allen of Camp street, returned to his home early today after having served his country abroad for over a year. Mr. Allen enlisted in the aviation branch of the navy and was stationed for early training at Pensacola. #### BOSTON MAN FINED

For Assisting in Conspiracy to Violate Anti-Narcotic Law.

Burlington, Feb. 26.—Benjamin F. Swann paid a fine of $1,000 in United States court yesterday forenoon, following his plea of guilty to a charge of assisting in a conspiracy to violate the anti-narcotic law. Swann, after paying his fine, took the next train to Boston, where he is vice-president of Gillman Brothers, wholesale druggists. With the disposal of the case, the rather sensational event of Carmicelli's arrest and conviction, as well as that of Deutschman's, is brought to a close. The government people now feel that with Swann's conviction the most important opium smugglers in New England have been taken care of.

Several months ago the agents of the government learned that Carmicelli was at the head of the biggest smuggling game which was on foot. While apparently working on a small salary in Montreal, he was living at the Windsor hotel and spending about as much in a day as he was supposed to earn in a week. One clue led to another, and one of the results was that Carmicelli's apartments on Massachusetts avenue in Boston were raided, and the government people found there about $15,000 worth of morphine and other derivatives of opium.

The agents of the government learned that the bottles of opium were obtained at the house of the Mallinckrodt Chemical works of St. Louis. By means of tracing the serial number, they also learned that Mr. Swann was the means of handling the goods. In his position as a wholesale druggist, he had a perfect right to purchase opium of the St. Louis concern for exportation into Canada.

The government agents learned soon just what Swann spent in St. Louis, and it remains the theory that the other members of the Gillman Brothers concern did not know that so much opium was being purchased by Swann.

In following up the case, the government officials found that Swann was shipping what he purchased in the way of opium to Montreal. His shipments were consigned to the American Drug company in Montreal, and that concern was of Carmicelli's invention. A surprisingly large amount of opium was used by this concern.

Swann got into trouble by shipping the stuff into Canada, knowing that it was to be smuggled back into the United States. This is the reason for his conviction. His plea of guilty to the charge prevented some very interesting testimony from being brought out, but one thing was shown up to the satisfaction of the prosecution, outside of the court room, and that was that Swann made a profit of about one dollar per ounce over that legitimately charged.

VERMONT INDUSTRIES NEED WATER OUTLET

benefit to every town and hamlet in the entire state. Mr. Milne called attention to the fact that every year, 250,000 tons of granite are shipped from the state. He said that there is keen competition from granite centers in the middle west, because freight rates out of Vermont are so much higher than those western centers, though putting out an inferior grade of granite, could compete with Barre. Mr. Milne maintained that, with lower freight rates, such as water transportation would bring, Vermont would be much better fitted to compete, and the manufacturers would also be able to dispose of many by-products, such as grout, which is now practically wasted.

Mr. Mackay claimed that inability to make use of our raw material has held Vermont down in the industrial world, since transportation facilities to the great markets of the world have been inferior. He maintained that by means of a large terminal thousands of dollars could be saved to the state every year, which now go into the treasuries of the railroads.

"There is material lying useless in this state," said Mr. Mackay, "which would pave the streets of every city we could reach." The speaker maintained that transportation is the thing that puts life into business, and better transportation facilities mean better markets.

Mr. Brooks of St. Johnsbury called attention to the fact that Vermont has just been going through a period which has linked all her citizens together as one, and he maintained that there is now nothing too difficult for Vermont to tackle, so long as it is a worthy object.

"And even in Vermont, we cannot live on scenery, no matter how beautiful it may be," said Mr. Brooks. "The world has beaten a track up here to Vermont, our little northwest neck of the woods, because we have something which the world wants."

Speaking for the scale manufacturing of St. Johnsbury and other parts of the state as well, Mr. Brooks said that while Vermont leads in this industry, her scales going all over the world, the question is already being raised as to whether it will be possible much longer, with increasing freight rates, to continue the manufacturing of scales in Vermont. The bringing in of raw material is a big problem these days, and Springfield and Windsor are having the same trouble in getting in raw materials for their industries.

Mr. Brooks maintained that, after the government has expended $10,000 on the harbors of Lake Champlain, the state would be blind indeed if it did not take advantage of this opportunity.

"Let us keep that wheel going which the war has engendered," said Mr. Brooks. "Let us use our credit, our faith in the future, with the determination that we place Vermont and her industries on the map of the world."

Mr. Jones spoke briefly, referring to the saving on coal coming into the state. Mr. Gordon of Johnson told of the competition with certain southern states in the tale industry, and said that the few cents a ton which would be saved through water transportation would mean much and would allow Vermont take companies to compete with the west. Senator Varium of Jeffersonville, who was a member of the large terminal commission during the past two years, declared that the Vermont large terminal would stabilize the rail rates, even though a ton of coal was never unloaded on the dock at Burlington.

Harry Howard of Burlington, who has put eight years into the study of this problem, serving in various public capacities, reviewed some of the things which have already been done in the opening up of waterways throughout New York state, and what investigations have been made on the part of Vermont. He urged that this large terminal be built as a
